Would you be interested in attending GLFLI meetings in the future? If not, why?

- All responses - Yes

Would you recommend attending GLFLI meetings to other members of your organization?

- 4 Responses Yes, 1 Response No

If not, why?

- Our organization is committed to addressing serious issues affecting our fisheries and this organization is not about solving these issues

What subject areas would you like to see addressed at GLFLI meetings in the future?

- There needs to be more conservation organizations involved. We need to look at the whole bio-diversity picture not just how much we can harvest.
- Ways to save the small tribs that flow into the Great Lakes from siltation and pollution and how to get $$$ to improve the streams.
- Fish quota for commercial harvest
- My interest lies mostly in promoting charter boat fishing
- Access to our Great Lakes. Enhanced fisheries. Better run programs for fishing by our government agencies.

Please tell us how we might improve GLFLI meetings in the future.

- It would be good for future meetings to devote some time to past accomplishments. This would give us a feeling that we are accomplishing something at the meetings.
- Information on diseases in fish in Lake Michigan, smelt, rainbow, chinook and coho
- Making them more worker friendly. As a young leader in the fishing community, it will be impossible to miss work to attend any future meetings that are held during the weekday.
